General Description of the Parkeville Hydropathic Institute.

The main building is three stories high, standing back from the street about one hundred feet, with a semicircular grass plot in front, and contains thirty to forty rooms. The grounds around the house are tastefully hid out with walks and planted with trees, shrubs, &c. On the left of the entrance to these grounds is a cottage containing four rooms, used by male patients as a bathing house, with every convenience for "packing," bathing, &c.; on the right of the entrance, about two hundred feet distant, stands a similar cottage, used by the ladles for similar purposes.

In the rear of the Institute, at the distance of one hun-In the rear of the Institute, at the distance of one hundred feet, are three other cottages, some eighty feet apart. One of these is the isundry, with a hydrant at the door; the other two are occupied by the servants.

The hydrant water is introduced into these cottages as well as into the main building, and all the waste water carried off by drains under ground.

weil as into the main colling, and all the waste water carried off by drains under ground.

THE WATER WORKS

Consist of a circular stone building, standing on the brow of a bill, surmounted by a large sedar reservoir containing five hundred barrels, brought from a never-failing spring of pure cold waker in the side of the bill, by "a hydraulic ram," a self-acting machine of cast iron, that is kept constantly going, night and day, by the descent of the water from the spring. The surplus water is carried from the reservoir to a fountain in the water-works yard, surrounded by weeping willows. In the first story of the water-works is a circular room, containing the douche bath, which is a stream falling from a height of about thirty feet, and can be varied in size from half an inch to an inch and a half in diameter. Adjoining the douche room is a dressing room, with marble tables, &c., it he rising douche (for the cure of piles, &c.) is one of the most couplete contrivances of the kind, being entirely under the control of the patient using the same.

To Persons out of Employment. NEW PICTORIAL WORKS,

Just published by R. SEARS, and for sale at No. 128

Nassau street, New York.

A MERICAN GIFT BOOKS FOR 1851.—Agents are wanted to circulate the following new and benutiful orks, (retail price, $2 50 per vol.) A new and complete PICTORIAL HISTORY OF CHINA AND INDIA; with a descriptive account of those countries and their inhabitants, from the earliest period of authentic history to the present time. In which the editor has treated not only of the historical events, but also of the manners, cuatoms, religion, literature, and domestic habits of the people of those immense empires.

The embellishments are about two hundred, and of the first order illustrating whatever is neculiar to the inhabitant of the control of t first order, illustrating whatever is peculiar to the inhabi-tants, regarding their dress, domestic occupations, their mode of agriculture, commercial pursuits, arts, &c. They mode of agriculture, commercial pursuits, arts, &c. They are accurate, and each one has been made expression for the work.

The volume forms a large octavo, containing between five and six hundred pages, printed in the best style, and on good substantial white paper. It is furnished to agents, hand-somely bound in musin, gitt, or leather, as the purchaser may prefer, at a very liberal disjoint, when quantities of not less than twenty copies are ordered at one time.

THRELING INCIDENTS OF THE WARS OF THE UNITED STATES;
comprising the most striking and remarkable events of the Revolution, the French war, the Tripolitan war, the Indian war, the second war with Great Britain, and the Mexican war; with three hundred engravings! Retail price, $2 50 per volume. Orders respectfully solitetted.

SEARS' PICTORIAL FAMILY PUBLICATIONS are decidedly the best books that agants can possibly employ their-time in supplying to the people of the United States. They are valuable for reference, and should be possessed by warry family in this great republic. There is not a city or town in these United States, not even those of small importance, but contains many citizens to whom these works are indispensable. They are adapted to the hese works are indispensable. They are adapted to the iterary wants of the Christian, the patriot, the statesman, these works are indispensable. They are adapted to the literary wants of the Christian, the patriot, the statesman, and the domestic circle, got up in a superior style of art and workmanship; and are not only such hooks as will sell, but are such as an agent of good principle will feel free to recommend, and willing to see the purchaser again after they have been bought.

Our Plan.—The plan the publisher has as accessfully carried out for several years, is the obtaining responsible Len as agents, who are well known in their covar counties, owns, and villages, and have time and disposition to circulate good and instructive books among their neighbors and friends. Any person wishing to embark in the enterprise will risk little in sending $25 or $50, for which he will receive an assortment as he may direct, at the wholesale cash prices.

Enterprising and active men of respectability and good address, would do well to engage in the sale of the above volumes: and all postmasters, clergymen, book pediars, and newspaper agents, are respectfully requested to act as our agents. A handsome renumeration allowed to all who ongage in their sale. For particulars address, post paid, ROBERT SEARS, 128 Naszau street, N. Y. To publishers of newspapers throughout the United States: paid, ROBERT SEARS, 123 Massau street, N. L.

To publishers of newspapers throughout the United States:
Newspapers copying this advertisement entire, without any alteration or abridgment, (including this notice,) and giving it a few inside insertions, shall receive a copy of any of our $2 50 or $3 works, subject to their order, by sending direct to the publisher.

"Cigars and Cognac."

Many years ago there was among the Secretaries of Departments one WILLIAM H. CBAWroup, and we believe his name may be still found among the national records, if it is not present day.

On a certain occasion a Senator of the United States called at the Department to see this Mr. CRAWFORD, and, taking a lighted cigar from his mouth, requested the messenger to conduct him to the apartment of the Secretary. "Yes, sir," replied the messenger, "but first ing reinforcements. throw your cigar into the stove." no such thing," exclaimed the indignant Sena-"Then I cannot take you to the Score tary's room," said the messenger. The Senator threw his cigar away, followed the messenger, entered the apartment of the Secretary in a towering passion, and made a serious complaint to Mr. CRAWFORD, who replied that the messenger had not exceeded his duty; and that if he had acted otherwise than as he did it would have cost him his place! This was some time ago. Things have sadly changed for the worse. We believe there is not a room connected with all the public offices of the Government that is not at least occasionally fumigated with tobacco smoke. Dignity and politeness are banished, the comfort of many persons is disregarded, the safety of these offices and their papers is jeoparded, and, of course, the labors of the smokers are retarded-for, say what you will, a cigar between the teeth or fingers does not facilitate the labors of a clerk. We are not at all in favor of placing gentlenen under constraint, and would on no account abridge any freedom or privilege that comports with what is right in fact and right in appearance; but we cannot see how smoking tobacco can be justified on either ground; and as real gentlemen do not drink to excess, the right to smoke cigars in a public office will include the less annoying practice of drinking whisky and water at every desk. This practice would be as likely to be tolerated in many a private counting-room or office as that of smoking

In the Treasury Department, the space above which the great spiral stairway ascends has een converted into one vast, noisome spittoon, where the saliva of tobacco, the ends of cigars &c., accumulate in such manner as to almost defy the sanatory efforts of the careful laborers.

This is all so swaggering and ruffianly in appearance, so incompatible with the dignity, decorum and agreeableness that should prevail, and so likely to impress every visiter with contempt, instead of respect for the places we have named, that it should be reformed by the authority of the President and Secretaries, if not by the voluntary resolves of the many who offend against the laws of politeness and pro-

We have advocated the elevation of the clerks in many particulars-equality between them and the officers placed above them-the restric tion of the appointing and removing powerthe institution of a tenure of office, &c. We shall therefore not be deemed disrespectful or unkind in intention when we urge the necessity of the correction of abuses practised by themselves.

THE PAMPERO.-An extra from the office of Lopez, from the time of his departure from New Orleans to his landing at Babia Honda. "The Pampero, having left New Orleans, proceeded to Key West; near here she remained several days, for the purpose of evading the vigilance of the Spanish ships. Having learned from the Key West wreckers that the inhabitants of the district of Vuclta Abajo (nearly opposite Key West) were up in arms, Gen. Lopez determined to avail himself of this information to make his landing among them. Steering for Babia Honda, his purpose was to land at a small port cailed Morello. When about eighteen leagues from Havana the machinery of the Pampero got out of order, the carden Tools, and Seeds ever offered in this market, consisting in part of the following, viz:

> For the American Telegraph. The Patriots' Massacre. BY E. B. DENSON.

Oh! who can tell the dark despair

That filled the Patriot's sturdy heart, When, like a vision of the air, He saw life's latest hopes depart ? Let's not despair-a freeman's soul Brooks not a monarch's tyranny;

Nor shrinks from death, whose blessed goal Is glorious immortality. Ah! yes, immortal they shall be-And fondly is their memory Engraved upon a nation's heart.

Aerial spirits hovered near To eatch the martyrs' stifled sigh-To bear it on the gushing sie To thousands who, too, dare to die! Arise! by cruelty oppress'd-

Arise! no longer slave—be free! There is a place among the blest For those who die for Liberty : It falls upon the mountain grag-It rolls along the woodland vale-

It wakes in forest depths the stag-

It fills at sea the flowing sail. Oh! who can tell its reho's power -The mortal throes of tyranny-The bliss of that approaching hour That brings forth Cuban liberty? WASHINGTON, Aug. 26, 1851.

From the London Magazine,

Reading the Will of the Mercenary This morning I received a note from my affianced bride, Constance Graham, requesting me to attend at two o'clock that day at the house of her late uncle in Harley street, for the purpose of hearing his will read. I had the greatest pleasure in complying with this invitation. Though Constance is the prettiest and most amiable girl of my acquaintance, had determined never to marry her while he uncle lived; he had frequently proclaimed her The Pampero approached within fifty yards his heiress, but as frequently took offence at something or at nothing in her behaviour, and bequeathed his wealth to a hospital, prison, or lunatic asylum. I felt quite easy on the present occasion, for Mrs. Bates, Mr. Graham' housekeeper, had given me information that, indeed, with every demonstration of favor. The only an hour before her master's death, he had told her he had handsomely provided for Constance. I felt, however, that it was my policy to appear ignorant of that circumstance, Con-stance being very romantic, and Constance's mother very suspicious.

At the appointed time I walked into the drawing-room in Harley street; the very few relatives of the old gentleman were assembled. There was Constance, looking as Hebe might have looked, if ever Hebe had worn crape and bombazine; Constance's mother looked very stiff, cross, and uneasy; an elderly female cou sin, and a stripling nephew of the deceased. is described as one of the most beautiful. The neat country residence, with its ample fields, its fine lawns, and the high state of culture the servility of his elderly cousin, and dreaded the servility of his elderly cousin, and dreaded the servility of his elderly cousin, and dreaded the frolics of his stripling nephew. I scated myself by Constance, and in a soft tone began to protest my affection and disinterestedness. "Knowing the caprice of your uncle, my beockschurmann & Schroeder, and others, consigned to see direct from the manufacturers.

"Still fixed to my heart, be it never forgot, That the wealth of the cottage is love." "I fancy, Mr. Chilton," said Constance's mother, looking excessively saccring and shrew-ish, "that it is pretty well known that my daughter is the sole heiress of her uncle's wealth." "Indeed, madam!" I replied, with a start of surprise. "I was not aware that any surmise was hazarded concerning the contents of Mr. Graham's will." "I have heard a surmise hazarded," sharply interrupted the elderly cousin, "that Mr. Gra ham was not in his senses when he made it."

"The mind must be both base and weak," retorted Constance's mother, "which could give credence to such a rumor." And forthwith a sparring dialogue took place between the two ladies, during which I whispered to Constance a page of Moore's poetry done into

Temple now entered the room, the solicitor and intimate friend of the late Mr. Graham; he was a handsome young man, and had pre-sumed at one time to lift his eyes to Constance; he opened the will, and we all became mutely attentive. Oh, what a disappointment awaited us! Three thousand pounds were bequeathed to Constance, (this was the old fellow's idea of a handsome provision!) Five hundred pounds to the elderly cousin, ditto to the stripling nephew, small legacies to the servants, and the remainder of his wealth to found a cold-water establishment for the reception of those who were not rich enough to pay a gratuity for being half drowned. Temple read the name of the attesting witness, and then refreshed himself with sherry and biscuits. As he was a friend of the family, his presence was no restraint on conversation.

"That will ought to be disputed," said Constance's mother, looking very red; "I do not believe Mr. Graham was in his senses when he

"I thought," said the elderly cousin, with a sneer, "that the mind must be both base and affected not to see it. I affected not to see it.

"My dear Miss Graham," I said, "do not believe me so cruel and selfish as to wish to plunge you into poverty."

"I thought you said that your income was sufficient for every comfort?" remarked the stripling nephew. I did not condescend to answer him, but continued: "No, Constance; though it breaks my heart to do so, I give you back your freedom, saying, in the pathetic words of Haynes Bay-ley, May your lot in life be happy, undisturbed by thoughts of me!'" I was just making to the door, leaving Constance looking more like Niobe than Hebe, when Temple said, "I think the party had better remain till I have read the codicil."

I reseated myself in amaze, and Temple forth with read that the testator, being convinced that he had received no benefit from the cold-water system, revoked and rescinded his legacy to it, bequeathing the same to his beloved nicce.

"Constance! dear Constance!" I exclaimed, in the softest of tones. But Constance looked neither like Hebe nor Niobe, but as stern and severe as Medea. I then attacked Temple. "Is it legal," I said, "only to read part of a will?"
"I read every word of the will," he replied, and, having greatly fatigued myself by so doing, I trust that it was perfectly legal to re-fresh myself with a glass of sherry before I read the codicil.' I was going to utter some further remarks, when Constance's mother said, "Good merning, Mr. Chilton!" in a tone of voice which left me no alternative but to echo her leave-taking; and laugh from the party in the drawing-room, returned home in very low spirits, and entered my adventure, or rather misadventure, in my diary, deducing from it this very valuable piece of advice to gentlemen in search of fortune: Never believe that a will is concluded till you have inquired whether there is any codicil to CUBA .- This island is six hundred and twenty-four miles in length, with an average width about sixty miles, containing an area of thirty-seven thousand square miles, and a population of 1,500,000. The value of its agriculturn! productions in 1849 was $62,781,085. The exports during the same period were $27,380,921, of which $8,700,224 were to the United States. Its imports during the same period were $26,708,348; of which $7,280,214 were from the United States. The amount of American tonnage employed in the trade with the island, during the same period, was 501,267 tons. The total amount of taxes levied upon the American commerce with the island, in the shape of duties upon imports, tonnage duties, and duties upon exports, exceed $4,000,000 annually. There are three hundred and fiftynine miles of railway in operation on the island. Of the $27,000,000 of annual imports accordng to official documents, $16,000,000 are in provisions, lumber, fabrics, materials, &c., which the one or the other of the United States could furnish more readily than any other country: but, through the taxes and restrictions imposed by Spanish policy, not more than one-third of it comes from the fields and factories
